

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A beam rotation angle detecting apparatus includes a light receiving portion for detecting the incidence positions of at least two beams moving on concentric circles while describing a circle or an arc, and an
5 arithmetic system for calculating and outputting the angle between a straight line linking at least two incidence positions detected by the light receiving portion together and a predetermined reference line.